

I thought that the right to privacy was something that was cherished in this country but it seems that the right to constantly sell you shtuff supersedes that right. Please keep the telephone consumer protection act strong so our time at home isn't constantly interrupted with bothersome and 100% unnecessary phone calls. We all have enough to concern ourselves over with terrorism at home and abroad without suffering "death from a thousand cuts" from obnoxious telemarketers. Thanks.